TWO THOUSAND PEOPLE KILLED PROPERTY LOSS $250,000,000 LATEST NEWS FROM VALPARAISO

All Things Considered Chilean Disaster Is Greater Than Calastrophe at San Francisco.

Great Fires Dying Out Because There is Little Left
To Burn—Eighty-Two Shocks First Night Followed
By Three Hundred Tremors—Famine
Is Not Feared.

Valparaiso, Aug. 20.—Two thousand lives lost and property valued at $250,000,000 ruined, is the latest estimate of the damage caused by earthquake and fire. It is known that the surrounding country has suffered severely. Vinar Delmar, Los Andes, Melipilla, Quiribue, Lamancio, Quillota, San Felipe and Casa Blanca have been destroyed and numerous smaller villages in the surrounding country are also ruined. All things considered the disaster is greater than the San Francisco catastrophe. There is infinitely more suffering. This is the winter season here. The weather has been bad and 100,000 people are homeless, living in the hills and on the mountains. The shocks continue, although with diminishing force. Eighty-two shocks occurred on the first day and night, and there have been 300 tremors since. It is not believed there will be any famine. Hundreds of tons of food products and flour were stored in the warehouses and in vessels in the harbor. The government has ordered warships hurried here from other ports to bring relief supplies.

The city is now under martial law and the authorities have suppressed the disorders but little has been done toward bringing order out of chaos. No organized effort has been made to identify the dead and in many instances the corpses have not been removed from the ruins. The great fires are gradually dying out, but because there is nothing more to burn. In large sections of the city the ruin is complete. Reports from outside towns today are incomplete, but they show frightful loss everywhere. Probably 1,000 lives were lost outside of Valparaiso and San Tiago and $10,000,000 is given as an estimate of the financial damage done through out the country.

CHILEAN LEGATION'S MESSAGE.

London, Aug. 20.—The Chilean legation today received a message from Santiago announcing that the "loss of life is not very great," and saying that the "damage to property is considerable at Valparaiso, but less at Santiago. Public order has been maintained. The authorities and private persons are succoring the distressed people. Foreign legations are lending aid. The north was wholly unaffected by the earthquake.

REPORTS AT CAPITAL

Still Conflicting and Confusing—$2
Shocks—2,000 Dead—250 Millions
Estimated Loss.

Santiago de Chile, Aug. 20.—Although reports of the earthquake damage are still conflicting and confusing, enough is known to assert that first accounts were somewhat exaggerated. There have been several return shocks of slight intensity. These shocks served to continue the state of public alarm and a state of panic still prevails. The astronomical observatory, however, issued a statement to the effect that it does not appear to be possible that there will be a repetition of severe shocks.

It is known at least eight lives were lost in Santiago by earthquake but it is believed many persons were killed by the falling buildings and that their bodies will be found later. Several persons became so panic-stricken during the tremblings of the earth that they threw themselves from balconies of their homes and were killed. The fires which followed the earthquake in this city were promptly extinguished, but while they lasted they added greatly to the terror of the people.

Scenes at hospitals and prisons during the excitement were distressing in the extreme. Prisoners tried to escape from jails in the hope that they might reach a place of safety, and prison guards were obliged to fire into the air in order to intimidate and quiet the panic-stricken charges.

In the city of Santiago much damage was done. Many public buildings, particularly churches, were dismantled. The buildings of congress, municipal buildings, normal school, courts, Peruvian legation, residence of President Riesco, central market, prefecture of police, and the national telegraph office were seriously damaged. Lines of the electric railway system and electric light wires were short-circuited, interrupting streetcar travel and plunging the city into darkness.

As all telegraph and telephone lines were more or less damaged, the exact situation throughout the country is not yet known, but advices were received to the effect that the towns of Virilago and Casa Blanca were entirely destroyed, and that San Felipe, Rancagua, Melipilla and Lillal were struction caused by fire and many towns wiped out. He added that there is universal mourning. He said it was reported that at Santiago there were 30 deaths and much destruction of property. The state department also announced that Mr. Hicks, under date of Aug. 18, reported that Aug. 16 there was a frightful earthquake with loss of life, many buildings being destroyed, and that shocks continued until the date of his telegram, that the legation was safe; that the houses in the towns were deserted and thousands of people slept in the plazas and parks.

Mr. Buchanan, head of the United States delegation to the pan-American congress at Rio, cabled the state department stating that no information was received at Rio concerning the earthquake, and asked the department for news. Acting Secretary Adee cabled the information contained in dispatches from Mr. Hicks.

Latest From Valparaiso.

Valparaiso, Aug. 20.—Valparaiso experienced an earthquake of great severity Aug. 16, and during that night 82 shocks were felt. Most of the buildings of the city were ruined or damaged. The loss will be enormous, probably reaching $250,000,000, and 2,000 killed is considered to be a fair estimate of the casualties. Vina Del Mar, three miles from Valparaiso, and having a population of over 10,000; Quiribue, 225 miles to the southward, with a population of 2,500; Salto, 15 miles to the northwest, with a population of 6,500; Quillota, 25 miles to the northwest, with a population of 10,000, and villages all around were destroyed. Most of the damage was due to fire, which started immediately after the shock.

PRESIDENT ENTERS THE CAMPAIGN

New York, Aug. 20.—President Roosevelt today sounded the keynote and defined the issues of the coming congressional campaign in a letter to Jas. E. Watson, Rushville, Ind. The President throws a huge bouquet to the recent congress and argues that a change would "substitute confusion violent and hurtful oscillation between the position of extreme radical and extreme reactionary for the present orderly progress along lines of carefully thought out policies."

The letter is a red hot Republican campaign speech and will doubtless cause certain conventions of Democrats to hesitate in the endorsement of the President's recent Democratic tendencies.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE PLANNING DETAILS OF RECEPTION TO WM. J. BRYAN.

Scene in Bryan Headquarters.

New York, Aug. 20.—Members of the Bryan Reception committee, at the conclusion of a meeting Wednesday afternoon, declared that a stream of $1 contributions and checks for sums ranging from $5 to $50 has for a week been pouring into the treasury. Among the $50 checks was one sent in the name of Richard Croker. Other large checks have been received, but as Mr. Bryan ruled that no individual contribution larger than $50 should be accepted they were not kept.

There will be plenty of money, it was said, to defray the expenses of the reception, notwithstanding that the cost will greatly exceed the original estimate. To entertain the thousands of representative Democrats who are planning to come to New York a generous sum will be placed at the disposal of the Entertainment committee. Timed at first, because of the receptions planned in other cities, that the country's Democrats would not flock to New York, members of the Reception Committee are now wondering what the city will do with the throngs that will pour into town.

Statistics show that 75 cities have arranged to send delegates of from twenty to 300 persons each. Every city of more than 100,000 inhabitants will be represented and many small cities in Texas, Minnesota, Oregon, Maine, New Hampshire, Florida, and other newer states have sent word that delegations have been named. Oklahoma will send 200 of her most prominent Democrats; Texas will send delegations from ten cities. Nevada and New Mexico have planned to be represented. Montana and Idaho will send representatives, and every Southern State will send its quota. In addition to these visitors there will be Democratic Governors from all the states that have them and Democratic Mayors from every Democratic city of importance.

LONGWORTH EMPHATIC IN SAYING ROOSEVELT WON'T BE A CANDIDATE

Cincinnati, Aug. 20.—Any doubt as to the determination of President Roosevelt to not be a candidate for another term or hope on the part of the Republicans that he may be induced or forced to make the race again were removed Saturday by a statement made by his son-in-law, Congressman Nicholas Longworth, who, with Mrs. Longworth, arrived in this city at noon.

While talking of his own plans for re-election to Congress, Longworth was asked:

"Do you think there is any prospect of President Roosevelt being induced to stand for re-election?"

"None whatever," he replied. "No possible combination of circumstances could arise which would lead him to accept another term. His mind is settled and irrevocable on that matter."

"The President is in excellent health. He is anxious that the party should elect a Congress for it would be an endorsement of his administration and the great reforms that he has inaugurated and in which he was loyally supported by the House."

Longworth will at once begin his campaign for renomination and election. Speaker Cannon will aid him in his canvass by delivering at least one speech in the district, if not more.

HAD BURIED WEALTH

So Family Is Left In Destitute Circumstances—Man Didn't Believe In Banks.

Wheeling, W. Va., Aug. 20.—A wife and three children in Croatia are destitute, the husband and father is dead at Benwood, W. Va., and must be buried by the county authorities, although he has a small fortune, the savings of years, buried somewhere in the vicinity of the Great National tube works. Peter Kuchlovitch intended returning home in a month, and expected to maintain his family the balance of their days on the savings he was able to accumulate. He did not believe in banks, and after he was hurt in the mill his friends urged him to reveal the hiding place of his money, that it might be placed to the benefit of his family, but he stoutly refused. He died without giving any information on the subject.

New York, Aug. 20.—William Travers Jerome, district attorney, issued the following statement: "In the present shameful condition of our political life in this state, I am willing to run for the office of governor of the state if the Democratic convention shall nominate me without understanding, expressed or implied, other than that, if elected, I shall obey my oath of office as I understand it—in letter and spirit."

ANOTHER APPEAL

For the Removal of Colored Troops From Fort Brown.

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 20.—Following a letter appeal from the officials and citizens of Brownsville, Senator Culberson again appealed to the war department for prompt investigation and immediate action into the situation in the southwest Texas city. He sent a telegram to General Anselworth of the war department urging telegraphic communication with the commanding officer at the post and a removal of colored troops from Fort Brown, claiming this the only means of bringing peace.

The senator's plea that the department at this juncture does not fully appreciate the situation of the situation in the southwest Texas city and the removal of colored troops will be a step toward peace.

DEMOCRATS ARE NOW GATHERING AT COLUMBUS

CONVENTION WILL CHOOSE THE CANDIDATES FOR COMING CAMPAIGN.

MCANN TO SOUND SLOGAN

Wm. J. Bryan Will Be Indorsed—
Pattison Platform Will Be Taken
As a Basis.

(Bulletin)

Columbus, O., Aug. 20.—Pattison and the principles of the late governor stood for and down with bossism in the party appears to be the slogan of the advance guard delegates to the Democratic state convention, which will meet here Tuesday and Wednesday. The late governor's friends will likely control the convention and while they are favorable to Chairman Garber and opposed to Mayor Tom Johnson they will not stand for any political combination between the so-called leaders. It is claimed that if an open attempt is made by the leaders to secure control for personal reasons the country delegates will deal a death blow to all. The platform will likely be a reiteration of last fall's document with a new plank on the taxation of franchises. Local option will likely be indorsed. Mr. Garber, from present indications, will again be at the head of the executive committee.

Columbus, O., Aug. 20.—Democratic claims are gathering at the capital for their annual convention, which will be held in the capital city's new Memorial hall August 21 and 22. As usual, the delegates will meet by congressional districts at 2.30 p. m. Tuesday to select committee-men, which will be reported to the convention at an evening session to begin at 7.30 o'clock, at which the temporary organization will be installed and the speech of the temporary chairman delivered.

Frank Harper, editor of the Mt. Vernon Banner, as chairman of the state central committee, will call the convention to order, announce the temporary organization and introduce the temporary chairman, Judge B. F. McCann of Dayton, who will sound the keynote. After this address the various committees will be announced, and a recess will be taken to 9.30 a. m. Wednesday.

During the interim the committee meetings will be held. The most important of these committee meetings this time will be that which will draft a platform. In all probability the temporary organization will be made permanent. It is not likely the committee on credentials will have any contests to settle. Rules and order of business will be according to the customary process. So that the most important work in committee will be the framing of a platform.

The wisecracks say there will be a contest between Johnson and the Pattison regime for control of the party machinery. If they are right about it the contest must be in the district caucuses over the selection of central committeemen.

When it comes to naming candidates for the four places on the state ticket this year the convention will make rapid progress, there being little prospect so far that more than one ballot will be required for each nomination. Several eligibles spoken of for the head of the ticket passed out of the equation voluntarily until it began to look as though Samuel A. Hoskins of Wapakoneta would have no opposition in the choice of a candidate for secretary of state. The Franklin county Democrats in their convention indorsed Allen W. Thurman for secretary of state. In a speech which followed Thurman declared he is not a candidate for any office in the world, so that it is not yet certain that his name will be presented.

Professor Charles Haupt of Wooster and J. A. McDowell of Millersburg are candidates for nomination for commissioner of common schools.

For food and dairy commissioner R. J. Diegel of Sandusky, J. F. Feather of Plain City and J. A. Devo of Marietta are prominently mentioned.

It is noted that the platform on which the Pattison campaign was waged last year will be taken as the basis for the party's declarations this year. Mayor Johnson of Cleveland will doubtless be a member of the platform committee and he will urge the adoption of some of his political policies, over which it is not likely that there will be any great controversy.

Ohio Democrats will fall in line with Democratic conventions of other states in an endorsement of William J. Bryan for president in 1908.

Judge P. B. Starnes, 74, prominent in the Populist campaign of 1900, died of heart disease. Was a old soldier and served on Gen. H. B. Ewing's staff.

Simplify Domestic Life

Volunteers to Undertake the Enterprise
With as Few as Twenty Families.
Will Devote His Time to It For Years if Need Be—How He Would Solve the Servant Problem.

By UPTON SINCLAIR in the Independent,
June 14.

I HAVE a problem to solve. I write an article about it for the reason that there are others troubled with it, and I believe that a number of people might solve it together where each would fail by himself.

In carrying out my purpose I am obliged to discuss what the world would call my "private affairs." So I explain at the outset that I am a socialist and consider that the private affairs of most individuals constitute the most important public affair now existing. I discuss my own because they are typical and because they happen to be the ones with which I am most familiar.

The problem is the one commonly known as the "servant situation." I invite you to consider the position of a man who is possessed of a small family and a small income and wishes to be free to turn his attention to intellectual pursuits.

Ideal Place to Rear a Child.

For the past two years we have lived upon a farm, and a farm is the ideal place to bring up a child, you have read in the books. At the outset a hanger for companionship seized our David, and he found his way to a neighbor's and played with a little girl who stuttered. After a week or two we found that he was stuttering, too, and stopped the visits, but too late, and now, for all I know, he may continue to say every word three times over as long as he lives. And when he was not learning to stutter he was up in the pear orchard stuffing himself or behind the house swimming the baby ducks and his shoes in the washtub or out in the kitchen mixing a pudding of pepper cruets, candlesticks and milk. So it was found necessary to get some one to take care of him, so little by little the problem has arisen, for you must understand that it is not merely a question of finding a governess or kindergarten expert; it is a question of setting up and keeping under way a home for him, and it is a question of an establishment of servants.

The mistake was in the beginning—you say—if you object to servants you ought never to have married. But a man to be denied the privilege of parenthood just because he happens to possess an intellect? And is it for the best interests of the race that its future generations should be furnished exclusively by the ignorant and callous? And if authors, artists, scientists and philosophers are to reproduce their kind what is to be done? Shall they have to marry their housekeepers? I have confessed many sacrifices for my art, but I have made that that one would have staggered me.

Of course we can do it if we must. We can stick to the farm and raise all our own food and keep our health and do it all at moderate expense, but how pitiful it is! We cannot travel; we can never hear any music or attend the theater; we can have only books and our own thoughts winter and summer, year in and year out. We cannot send our child to a kindergarten, to school; he can never be with other children. Can a mere writer of original books afford a house in the city or city prices for impure food? And of course we cannot keep a wide awake boy in a boarding house or apartment. No, we must have our own home and in the country, so our thoughts come back from every flight. Let us make one desperate effort to try to get good servants and then pay them anything and keep them, and then when we get the machine running let us get a little house near by and keep it for our own and allow no one there and go and live there and eat cold food and do our own work whenever we wish to be alone with our thoughts.

That was our plan until I took the resolution to write this article. There are hundreds and even thousands in exactly the same plight, I said. And why should they all sink back and reconcile themselves to the monstrous absurdities of isolated housekeeping?

As a preliminary to explaining what I wish to propose I shall state one thing that I do not propose. I am not dreaming any sort of self supporting colony, to set a new ideal and realize the co-operative commonwealth. What I am making here is a simple business proposition for an association of people who may possess a moderate income to secure the benefits of the application of the machine process to their domestic affairs.

Living Like a Feudal Baron.

Here am I on my little farm living as my ancestors lived, like a cave man or a feudal baron. I have my little castle and my retainers and dependents to attend me, and we practice a hundred different trades—the trade of serving meals and the trade of cleaning dishes, the trade of washing and ironing clothes, of killing and dressing meat, of churning butter, of baking bread, of grinding meal, of raising chickens, of cutting wood, of preserving fruit, of heating a house, of decorating rooms, of training children and of writing books—and all these crowded into one establishment, in close proximity and all jarring and clashing with each other and all carried on in the most primitive and barbarous fashion upon a small scale and by unskilled hand labor. It takes a hundred hands to prepare a hundred meals badly, while twenty cooks could prepare one meal for a hundred families and do it perfectly. It costs $100,000 to build and equip a hundred kitchens; it would cost only $5,000 to build one kitchen. It takes a hundred chairs and a hundred sewing backs to make a thousand pounds of butter; it would take only one machine and a man to tend it to make the same thousand pounds, and the cost of making it would be cut 95 per cent. But, of course, you cannot have large butter-making except it is done for profit, and that means adulteration and poisoning. It takes a hundred ignorant nursemaids to take care of the children of a hundred families and develop every kind of ugliness and badness in them. It would take only twenty or thirty trained nurses and kindergarten teachers to take care of them co-operatively and bring them up according to the teachings of science.

One could show this same thing in a thousand different forms if it were necessary, but it has all been reasoned out in Charlotte Perkins Gilman's book, "The Home," and any one to whom the idea is new may read it there. The purpose of this paper is not to persuade any one, but to move to action those already persuaded. To such I offer my co-operation.

Near to New York.

The following embodies my own conception of what such a "home colony" should be. It would be located within an hour of New York and would have 100 families and 300 or 400 acres of land, healthfully located, near some body of water and as unspoiled by the hand of man as possible. It should have an abundant water supply and a filtering plant, an electric light and power plant and a large garden and farm, raising its own stock, meat, poultry, fruit and vegetables and canning the last for winter use. It should be administered by a board of directors democratically elected. For the management of its various departments salaried experts should be employed, machinery should be installed wherever it could be made to pay, and the best modern methods should be applied in every industry. All its purchases should be in bulk and tested for quality, and so far as the preparation and serving of food is concerned the processes should be kept as aseptic as a surgical operation.

The buildings of this home colony should be of frame at the outset, of simple and expressive design, each structure exactly adapted to its specific purpose. The buildings should be conveniently grouped—those for the children in one place, those for cooking and eating in another, those for reading, for music and social intercourse, for recreation and exercise in still other places. The greater part of the land would be given up to farm and woodland and to the individual dwellings of the families. The ground available for this latter purpose should be divided into lots, priced according to size and location and leased to stockholders for long terms. Each would erect his own home, according to his own taste—a home of course of a kind hitherto unknown, with no provision for the cooking of food or the training of children or other trades and professions. It would be a place where the family met, to rest and play and sleep. It might be large or small, anything that the owner chose to make it. My own would be a four or five room cottage of rustic design, and it would cost from $500 to $800. Besides these there should be apartment buildings owned by the colony and dormitories with rooms for single men and women.

As to the public buildings, there should be a large and beautiful dining hall and a modern, scientifically constructed kitchen. There should be separate tables for each family or for congenial groups of people. The service should be unexceptionable, the food simple, but perfect in quality and preparation. There should be a vegetarian service for those who prefer this cheaper mode of life, and the charge for board should be based upon the cost of the service. I will probably be laughed at, but I believe that, granting the land, horses and machinery, buildings, equipment and capital, the members of such a colony as I describe could be provided with perfect service and an abundance of food of the best quality at a total cost of $100 a year per person.

A Children's Heaven.

So much for the co-operative preparation of food. And now for the caring for children. There should be two separate establishments, one for infants who like to sleep, and one for children who like to run and shout. Both should be scientifically constructed and ventilated and kept as clean as an up-to-date hospital. The food should be prepared under the general direction of a physician. No building for children should be over two stories high, and the upper windows should be beyond the reach of children. No matches or exposed fire should be permitted, and there should be a night watchman, fire extinguishers and an automatic sprinkling apparatus. These establishments should be under the supervision of a board of women directors, and the actual work of caring for the children, washing, dressing and feeding them, playing with them and teaching them, should be done by trained nurses and kindergarten teachers who live in the colony as the friends and social equals of its members. In other words, it is my idea that the caring for children should be recognized as a profession and that servants should have nothing to do with it. It is my idea that it should be done in a place built for the purpose, with doors for babies to crawl where there is no dirt for them to eat, with playgrounds for children where there are no stoves and wells, no cats, dogs, no workbenches, lamps, pianos, sewing machines, jam closets, inkstands and authors' writing tables. Instead there should be sleeping rooms and bedrooms and sun parlors for nursing mothers, a separate building for the playgrounds for bad weather, and a big all outdoors romping ground, with sunny places and shady places, swings, rocking horses, sand piles and all other accessories of a children's heaven.

Every member of the community I propose would have his own home, to which he would invite his personal friends as he chose, and the other members of the community he would meet in the same way that he meets acquaintances in business and politics, in theaters, restaurants and clubs. In a colony of a hundred families there ought to be persons of every kind of inclination, and it would not be in the least necessary for any one to associate with those who are not congenial. This spirit, if wisely and earnestly cultivated, would solve the "servant problem" for the colony and solve the health problem for its members as well.

In this community every member would be credited for the time he worked, and it ought to become the custom for the men to help with the harvests and the women with the preserving of fruit and the children with the berry picking and the weeding of the gardens. I have no doubt that there are thousands of young men and women in New York city, students of art and music and the professions, who would be glad of a chance to earn their way in a community where class feeling did not make labor degrading. I appreciate the difficulties in the way of such a project, the chances at present against a coal heaver being a socially possible person, and I am not insisting that the day laborers should share in the privileges of the community. But I do think that this should certainly be the case with those whom we select to care for and teach our children and also, if possible, with those whom we permit to prepare and serve our food. I am not willing to shake a man's hand or sit next to him in a reading room I do not see why I should be willing to eat what he has cooked.

Building For Social Purposes.

There would be a laundry in the colony, a boat, livery, and bath houses, a drug store, a general store, a refreshment room. There would, of course, be a complete telephone service, electric lights and hot water or electric heating throughout the buildings. There would be a resident physician, and perhaps before long teachers of music and languages might find it worth while to join the colony. There would, of course, be a building for social purposes, with large piazzas for summer and sun parlors for winter. There would be a hall for lectures, concerts, theatricals and dancing. There would be a reading room and a circulating library of periodicals and recent books. It is your custom to spend, say, $50 or $100 a year for these, and you could achieve your purpose co-operatively for a fifth of the expense. There would be a gymnasium and a swimming pool and, of course, tennis and croquet and baseball grounds. There would be stages to meet all trains and closed conveyances to convey people to and from the dining hall in bad weather. There would be a livery stable, at which one could hire or keep a rig for about one-fourth what it would cost you elsewhere.

I think that such a community should be planned for the accommodation of a certain number of members and the necessary working force and should be limited to this. Not all of the members need be stockholders, of course. Others might be admitted to the benefits of the association, but in that case the stock should pay dividends, and in any case the management of the corporation would have to be vested exclusively in the stockholders. For the administration of the various industries there would have to be a superior talent, a man of first class executive ability, responsible to the board of directors, and there would be a corps of managers of departments, each a thoroughly experienced man: a manager of the farm and stables, of the truck and flower gardens, of the purchasing department and the co-operative store, of the catering department, of the building and grounds, the power plant and the heating department. How many such men there should be and what they should be paid, how many employees of all sorts would be necessary, is one of the questions upon which expert advice is needed. I am willing to set a complete set of figures for the enterprise I have outlined, provided that I hear from a sufficient number of people to make it worth while. I am perfectly and seriously in earnest about the matter, willing to give my time to it, for years if need be. I hope to start from 100 or 200 people who are interested. I am willing to undertake the enterprise with as few as twenty families. I wish to hear not merely from those who will invest as stockholders, but also from those who will rent or build homes, from men and women who are willing to contribute their labor as waiters, cooks, nurses, teachers or managers, and from persons having business experience who would like to help me in working out this plan.

AN EXILE FOR SCIENCE

Naturalist to Become a Crusoe

WILL LIVE ALONE THREE MONTHS

Hopes to Aid Science by Collecting
Specimens of Every Form of Animal and Plant—Will Hunt Sea Elephants For Their Skins—Trip to Be Made on a Whaler.

To be suddenly taken from the bright lights of New York to an island which is said to be uninhabited and to remain there for three months will be the fate of Alfred J. Klein, a young man in the taxidermy department of the American Museum of Natural History, says the New York Press. But despite his fate he looked pleased with the idea the other day when he said the temporary exile was for the sake of science, as he is going to collect skins of sea elephants, a kind of seal larger than a walrus, which are said to exist in the seas about Kerguelen island, on the border of the Indian and Antarctic oceans. Klein will also shoot birds for the museum's collection and make a thorough investigation of every species of living thing there, not excepting mosquitoes and flies.

He will leave New York in the early part of September and sail from Boston on a whaler. The voyage to the island will take about six months. Klein will take with him the latest camping outfit and canned food, but he expects to live chiefly upon what he can shoot on the island. The captain of the whaler has made a contract with the museum authorities to take Klein to the island and give him occasional help on condition that the whaler can have all the oil from the sea lions which Klein shoots, while he is to take only the skins.

Dr. F. A. Lucas, who is connected with the Natural History museum, is responsible for sending the young man out on the expedition, as he thinks that several important discoveries can be made on that small place, which is thousands of miles away from any populated part of the globe. Mosquitoes are said to exist there, but not the kind found in this part of the world, as they are not equipped with wings. There are also on the island peculiar species of tortoise and birds which have never yet been seen in the museums. Although the island has been formally annexed by the French, it has never been explored, and it is only through the tales of passing fishermen who have been on the island for a few days that scientists in New York have decided that the little spot of earth in the immense ocean is worth exploring.

Apart from the animal wealth of Kerguelen island there are plants of different varieties which have never been taken to the civilized part of the world. Klein will collect specimens of every form of animal and plant. He will prepare the skins of the animals and birds, and the plants and flowers will be put into formaldehyde and glycerin to preserve, and when Klein comes back to the United States they will be named by botanists. A variety of orchid thrives on the island which, if ever brought to the United States, would, it is believed, be one of the most valuable flowers in the world. Even the orchids that have been found in explorations in Borneo do not compare in the matter of colors to the Kerguelen beauty.

The only difficulty in getting authentic information from the place has been the fact that no sailing vessels or steamships pass anywhere near Kerguelen island and the cost of chartering a ship might not be repaid by the results, as it involves considerable risk. The officials of the museum heard about the whaler which leaves in September, and a bargain was struck to take young Klein on the next voyage. Klein was picked out because he was one of the healthiest men in the employ of the museum and one of the most enthusiastic. He has shown considerable talent in his work and has been in the employ of the museum for more than four years.

Although apparently satisfied with emulating the life of the hero of Dece's book, young Klein takes the idea of the voyage in the most serious way. He has already prepared for the long journey by purchasing many books, which he will study on the tedious trip and which will help him in the scientific research in that remote part of the world.

One thing made him start, and that was the possibility of the sailing vessel being wrecked after he had been left on that spot, far away from everywhere, which might mean his remaining for a long time on Kerguelen island. But this fact did not lessen his enthusiasm, although it was pointed out to Klein that he might come far nearer to living the life of a Robinson Crusoe than he dreamed of while he was safe and sound in a civilized part of the globe.

The whole trip will take about eight months, presuming no mishap occurs on the sailing ship.

Berries Going to Waste.

The berry crop around Winsted, Conn., is the heaviest ever known and thousands of quarts will go to waste because nobody wants them for the picking, says the New York World. Every housewife who can berries, blue or black berries already has a supply for the winter larger than usual. One Naples farmer who brought ten full crates to Winsted could not find a market for them at any price, and rather than give the berries away fed them to his pigs.

NEW PLANT CREATIONS.

Luther Burbank Produces Four Wonderful Flowers and Sweet Squash.

Five new creations in plant life, the work of Luther Burbank, have been prepared for the market and will be commonly grown within a year, says a San Francisco dispatch. The new plants are listed in a catalogue recently issued by Burbank. The first and most wonderful is the Improved Australian star flower. The variety just perfected by Burbank is of unusual beauty and color and is of the nature of old fashioned everlasting flowers.

The Shirley poppy, a new variety of which has been called the Santa Rosa strain by Burbank, is an enlargement of the regular cultivated poppy which is commonly grown in California gardens. It is larger and more beautiful than anything that has ever been offered, and the colors particularly are blended in a new manner. The California wind poppy is another variety of the common cultivated poppy, differing slightly from the Shirley poppy.

The Heugheba christata is a new foliage plant, which is considered by Burbank one of the most wonderful of his creations. It has large leaves of peculiar shape and brilliancy and is one of the most striking foliage plants known.

The Patagonia vegetable squash is a variety of garden vegetable which has been imported from Chile by Burbank and greatly improved. It is an apple shaped squash, very sweet to the taste and is expected to be a favorite garden squash.

"VARIABLE" HAIR CUT.

A Barber Tells of Newest Thing Taught in "Tonsorial College."

One barber was "on watch" at the Hotel Baltimore shop early the other night in Kansas City. George, the negro porter, was mopping the hotel floor. A man went in and removed his coat and then his hat, displaying some wavy black hair, says the Kansas City Times.

"Give me a 'variable'—don't make it too short," he said.

The barber nodded. When the man had left the shop George was curious. "Boss, what's a 'variable'?" he blurted out.

"A 'variable'?" The barber repeated the inquiry. "Well, you know Webster, don't you, George? He's the dictionary man. He says 'variable' means changeable. I cut that man's hair, he wants to. He won't have to stand in front of a glass and fuss around with a comb before he can find the right place for the part. He can part it over his left ear or his right ear or in the middle. The hair will always fall evenly."

"You see, George," continued the barber, "most barbers don't wise to the variable. They cut a man's hair first, then cut it. That won't do. Always ruffle the hair first, then cut it evenly all around and you've got the variable."

A CAUSE OF DIVORCE.

Cleveland Man Blames Quick Lunch For Unhappy Home.

Death to the "ham and" order! It causes most of the domestic infelicity. No girl should marry a man who has the quick lunch habit, for his life is certain to be unhappy. So says Frank Coombs, head of the Cleveland health department, according to a special dispatch from Cleveland, O., to the New York World. Coombs has made a study of the subject, and his conclusions are based upon exact information. Here is what he says:

"The barbarism of a south sea islander cannot be compared with the hurry up ideas some people have in restaurants—a sinker and a drink of coffee swallowed at a gulp. It ruins digestion and makes a man irritable."

"The quick lunch habit causes indigestion; indigestion engenders irritability and ill nature; this makes a man miserable, and then we vote upon the person who has to be associated with him!"

"More divorces, wrecked homes and domestic trouble can be traced back to the door of the quick lunch restaurant than to any other single source. The health authorities and all physicians advocate thorough mastication of food and good, wholesome foods. The dope that a man gets at quick lunches is directly responsible for a vast number of family rows."

"SWEET SIXTEEN" BANQUET

Guests at Wedding Anniversary Ate Nothing But Onions.

An onion reception and banquet in honor of the sixteenth wedding anniversary of Professor and Mrs. Frank Gilman of Newark, N. J., was the entertainment offered a large number of guests at the summer home of Mrs. Cornelius Mercereau in Union, N. Y., the other evening, says a Binghamton (N. Y.) dispatch to the New York Tribune.

The house was decorated with onion blossoms. There were onion blossoms as the centerpiece on the dining table, and a course dinner was served of onions in every conceivable shape, and nothing but onions. There were top onions, sliced onions, onion salad and fried onions. The affair was pronounced a decided success.

No Hose at 311. Latest Seaside Fad.

Another startling departure has been taken by the Long Branch "summer girls"—that is, those of them who are proud of their limbs. The new wrinkle is to go in the surf not with half hose or socks, but with no covering from the knee down, says the New York American. Of course, sandals are worn, because the sand and shells don't respect even the daintiest of feet or the pinkiest of toes.

Every woman knows that a polished table collects so much dust in a day that she can write her name on it.

The same thing happens to a soda cracker exposed to the air—sufficient reason for buying Uneeda Biscuit the only soda cracker. Perfectly protected in a dust tight, moisture proof package.

SPAULDING'S CLAIM.

Begins Suit to Recover Interests Paying Big Dividends.

Boise, Idaho, Aug. 20.—Charles W. Spaulding, former treasurer of the University of Illinois and former president of the Globe Savings bank, Chicago, who recently completed a term of seven years' imprisonment in the penitentiary at Joliet for embezzlement of funds entrusted to him, began suit in the federal court here against James H. Brady, chairman of the Republican state committee, and others to recover valuable interests in the Idaho, Canal and Irrigation and the Pocatello Power and Company company. Spaulding charges that through connivance with the trustees handling his property while he was in the Illinois penitentiary the Idaho men gained control of his interest in the two companies, worth $270,000, for $70,000. Spaulding alleges that the property involved is paying dividends on more than $1,000,000.

FLOOD AT JOHNSTOWN

Caused by a Cloudburst, Resulting in Considerable Damage.

Johnstown, Pa., Aug. 20.—An unprecedented rainstorm here that resembled a cloudburst flooded Moxham, the fashionable residence section of the city, and caused thousands of dollars' damage. Streetcar traffic was tied up two hours. Many of the streets were two to three feet deep with water, and the Conemaugh river and Stony creek rose rapidly. The business section of the city is some distance from the flooded section and was safe from damage.

Hundreds of outbuildings, barns and bridges were carried away. Portions of the Johnstown passenger railway company tracks were covered three to four feet with debris. One car was swept from its tracks by a sudden swirl of water from the mountain side, and in less than two minutes the water reached a foot above the car floor. Hundreds of wagons loaded with fruit and vegetables from the neighboring gardens lay along the roads, while the contents are scattered promiscuously along the valley, pike in the hill and slope section. For a time this road was under five feet of water.

The committee having charge the lawn fete to be given by the members of Licking Company, 121, Uniformed Knights of Pythias, on the Pythian lot on East Main street, Tuesday evening, extend a cordial invitation to everybody to attend. An evening full of enjoyment is assured all who attend for the small sum of ten cents. 18431

An Animal Story For Little Folks

THE MOOSE WHO TRIED TO PLEASE EVERYBODY

There was once a young moose who was brought up far away from his kind. When his horns began to sprout he went about among all his playmates asking them what they thought of the new venture. The bear told him that it was perfectly ridiculous to have hard things growing out of your forehead that way. "I've never had anything of the sort," said Bruin, "and look at me—I am the king of the forest, and when I roar everybody obeys."

The moose calf shambled home to his mother and told her he thought he would go out of the antler business at once. "Gump!" grunted Old Lady Moose. "You let those horns alone. You'll be glad enough when they grow out."

By and by the horns began to show big scowly surfaces, different from anything the moose had ever seen, for he was brought up away from other moose. He asked the deer what they thought about such horns as his, and they told him it was a great mistake. His horns should come in prongs like theirs; they advised him to get some one to break them apart or file them down.

"Gump!" said Old Lady Moose. "Your horns are made thus so as to scoop off the snow, that you may graze in the winter." When he came a little later and wanted his horns taken off entirely because some of the creatures thought them too big, she told him she was going to take him to the moose grazing ground in the spring and then he would find what his horns were for.

When they went to the moose grazing ground they met any number of young moose, who concluded that they would try a fight with the new moose that had come. Then, oh, then, he found out just what his horns were made so big and strong for. And when he had whipped all the other moose he and his mother lived there in peace and comfort.—Worcester Post.

UNIVERSITY FOR MEXICO.

To Be Founded in 1910 to Celebrate Centennial of Independence.

Commissioned by President Diaz of the republic of Mexico to observe the workings of the University of California and Stanford university in order that the National University of Mexico, which is to be founded to celebrate the first centennial of the independence of Mexico in 1910, may be modeled after the best in these two great American universities, Dr. Ezequiel A. Chavez, secretary of public instruction and fine arts, is in Berkeley, Cal., says a correspondent of the San Francisco Chronicle. He is to give a course of lectures at the summer school of the University of California on the "History, Institutions and Progress of Mexico." His connection with the state university during the summer school is incidental to his work as a commissioner. He accepted the invitation in order to get an insight into the methods and administration of this university.

Dr. Chavez said recently: "I am here to observe. The school system of Mexico is unique. It has had its own development. It is not Spanish. It is not American, but Mexican. There are, first, the primary, then the grammar and high schools and finally the preparatory and professional schools. There is no university in the American or European sense. There are faculties of law, agriculture, fine arts, medicine, engineering, architecture, arts, crafts and archaeology in the City of Mexico and other cities of the republic, but they are entirely separate and distinct. On the occasion, however, of the one hundredth anniversary of the independence of Mexico in 1910 all these various faculties will be welded together into a national university."

Senior Chavez is the leading psychologist of Mexico. He was professor of psychology in the preparatory before his appointment to his present position as secretary. He has done important service in rendering into Spanish certain classics of logic and ethics, notably Mill's logic and Spencer's ethics. His latest translation is the "Principles of Psychology" by Professor Titchener of Cornell.

Akron Treasury Scandal.

Catches Senator Dick.

The defalcation of the treasurer of Summit county, constituting a shortage of several hundred thousand dollars, has developed into the greatest sensation that has shook up Ohio for years. It turns out that Senator Dick is pretty badly mixed up in the affair, and that the city of Akron, Summit county, has been headquarters of a gang of machine politicians that have not hesitated at robbing the treasury as well as debauching politics. The Columbus Dispatch devotes over a page of its Sunday edition to an expose of the gigantic robbery, including pictures of the residences of Dick and the defuncting treasurer, that are directly opposite each other on West Market street, in the city of Akron.

Among the exposures in the Dispatch's article is the fact that while the examination of the county treasury was being made Senator Dick's business partner and chief political lieutenant, State Central Committee-man L. C. Miles, rushed into the treasury at the last moment and paid a $26,000 loan that had been made to Dick and Miles.

But the payment was not soon enough to cover up the scandal; and in the list of securities given by the examiners in their report there still appears a note for $10,000 signed by Dick and Miles.

All in all, the Summit county treasury defalcation is about the boldest piece of robbery of public funds and the most deplorable culmination of machine politics that has ever been unearthed in Ohio.

If Senator Chairman Dick can now succeed in the fight he is making for continuation of his leadership at the coming Republican State Convention then it will be demonstrated to all that the party is entirely helpless under the most corrupt and notorious boss rule that has afflicted this or any other State.

A fact comes to light in the Akron Treasury shortage that does not speak volumes of praise for the State Auditor's Bureau of Inspection of Public Offices. State Auditor Guilbert sent one of his "special examiners" last spring to Akron to make an examination of the treasury there, but he failed to find any of the startling conditions that actually existed and which have been exposed by the recent examination made under the direction of local officials and association of citizens. The State Auditor's "special examiner" reported everything all right and the treasury robbery that had been going on for years was permitted to continue under the sanction and approval of such high authority. Next time the State Auditor would do better by sending an examiner who can and will examine.

The discontent in the Republican ranks in Ohio is just as great now as it was a year ago, and indications are that it will grow with the approach of the campaign when it is likely to burst with all the fury that characterized the campaign last fall. The sentiment against bossism is everywhere apparent to all except the machine politicians in the party. The Republicans who declared their independence a year ago and refused to vote the ticket nominated by direction of the boss are threatening to repeat their action this fall. The Republicans of Ohio have often been assured that their only dangers lay in overconfidence. It appears that that assurance so frequently given by the state chairman might be taken by him now. The great body of Independent Republicans will hardly have their intelligence presumed upon this year, knowing what they accomplished but a short year since.

The terrible earthquake in Chile, South America, seems to be a still greater calamity than that which afflicted San Francisco. The capital city, Santiago, with a population of some 350,000, and the chief seaport city, Valparaiso, with a population estimated at 150,000, and other smaller cities along the seacoast and in the interior, were great sufferers by the destructive earthquakes and the conflagrations which followed. By the earthquakes and fires these prosperous and beautiful cities have been, practically destroyed and many thousands have been made homeless. The total loss of both life and property, it is said, will far exceed that of the San Francisco calamity. Santiago, the Chilean capital, situated 90 miles from Valparaiso, is located on a fertile plain about 2,000 feet above sea level, at the base of the outlying range of the Andes mountains, and has been noted for its magnificent public buildings, its churches, monuments, parks and private residences. The civilized world will await with anxiety full information as to the extent of this latest calamity.

SEVEN MEN

Sleeping on a Work Train Were Killed by Rear-End Collision.

Johnstown, Pa., Aug. 20.—Plunging through a blinding rainstorm at the rate of 45 miles an hour, a fast freight train on the Pennsylvania railroad crashed into a slowly moving work train crew. Three of the latter will probably die. None of the crew of the freight train was injured. The work train stopped near Sang Hollow to take water. A Fort Wayne freight train was following, and because of the rain the engineer was unable to see the work train until just before the crash. The engineer of the freight train jumped and was fatally hurt. The fireman remained on the engine and was not injured. When the freight engine crashed into the work train it plowed its way through the cars. All of the laborers and others of the work crew were asleep, and those killed probably never knew they were struck.

Chilean Legation's Advice.
Washington, Aug. 20.—The cable advice received at the Chilean legation from Santiago state that the earthquake in that city was very severe, but that there were few casualties. Up to the time of filing the dispatch, which the charge d'affaires Reeves was Saturday night, no news was received in Santiago from Valparaiso on account of interruption to railroad and telegraph lines.

JOS. M. ICKES WANTS NEWSPAPER

BUT EX-POSTMASTER DENIES HE IS AFTER COLUMBUS PRESS-POST.

Dispatch of That City Says Interurbans and Brewers Have United in Enterprise.

To obtain control and publish a morning and evening newspaper in Columbus is the ambition of the brewery interests, said Sunday's Columbus Dispatch which added: For the purpose of carrying on this plan of securing an organ through which they may voice the sentiments of the liquor traffic, in regular editions at least twice each day, they have associated themselves with interurban interests and a few local politicians, among them L. Ewing Jones.

Their designs are upon the Columbus Press-Post, and they now have negotiations on for the purchase of the paper, with a view to remodeling its policy to thoroughly and completely subserve their purposes.

The surface negotiations for the property are being conducted under the direction of J. M. Ickes, who formerly owned and operated the Newark Tribune, but who has recently been engaged in various enterprises at Newark and Mt. Vernon. Mr. Ickes has paid frequent visits to Columbus and since August 11, the active negotiations have been in progress to swing the deal in behalf of interests which find themselves in public disfavor.

On the day mentioned an option of one year on the Press-Post plant held by W. P. Harrison of Cincinnati and Columbus, was taken up from the principal owner of the paper, Ellis O. Jones.

These various interests in the syndicate have important motives for their desire to invest in Columbus newspaper property, and have expressed themselves in no uncertain terms that it is not wholly a question of money. They have invited owners of other publications to simply name their price, and it would be forthcoming without delay. The chief interurban influence in the syndicate is the Morgan-Schoepf crowd, which holds the dominating power in lines that cover the states of Ohio and Indiana.

It has many favors to ask and is buying newspapers in many towns along its principal routes. The "Star League" of newspapers, principally published in Indiana, which takes in the Star of Indianapolis and others in Terre Haute, Muncie and towns of lesser importance, have been bought outright, but their latest purchase was the Dayton Journal.

It is essential to the successful issue of the scheme that both a morning and evening paper in Columbus be secured. It is the converging point that is quite as important as any of the others, in view of the fact that the political destiny of Senator Foraker is involved, and that his son is the vice president of the Ohio lines included in the syndicate. The interests of both being mutual, the achievement of one is equivalent to the advancement of the cause of the other.

The interurbans have what they consider as much at stake as the brewers, and they very much desire the appointment of a friendly railroad commissioner who can either grant or encourage the granting of franchises of long life and easy requirements. They are anxious to procure rights over the country highways and streets of cities and villages which they do not now enjoy. To get these concessions they need Columbus newspaper support.

The brewers on the other hand are planning to kill the Aldin thousand dollar tax law by having it held unconstitutional, or repealed should this prove unsuccessful, and have passed legislation patterned by themselves.

Mr. Ickes was talked with by telephone at Mt. Vernon Saturday evening, and while he admitted that he was in the market for a newspaper, he denied that he was negotiating for the Columbus paper, although he said he and Mr. Harrison were acquaintances of long standing.

FRANK P. COPPER GETS PROMOTION
NEWARK MAN MADE DISTRICT PASSENGER AGENT AT NEWARK.

Columbus Office Is Now Cut Down To An Agency—Report Confirmed By Mr. Austin.

A special telegram from Mr. B. N. Austin, general passenger agent of the Baltimore & Ohio Railway company to The Advocate from Chicago Monday afternoon, confirms the report of the promotion of Mr. Frank P. Copper to the position of district passenger agent, headquarters at Newark, effective August 20.

A report of Mr. Copper's appointment had reached Newark from Columbus, but the local officials knew nothing about it and Mr. Copper himself was at Tiffin, Ohio. The dispatch from Mr. Austin settles the matter.

Mr. Copper has been traveling passenger agent for the B. & O. It appears that a compromise has been effected in appointing a successor to D. S. Wilder, recently district passenger agent of the B. & O. with headquarters in Columbus.

It is understood that an appointment will be made later on in the month, of some one to be city passenger agent of the road in Columbus.

At present W. W. Tammage is discharging the duties of that office, in addition to others he has heretofore performed, but he does not have the title. The office is, however, short one man.

Mr. Copper is well known in Columbus, and it is said there that the only regret that there will be, is that the divisional offices are to be moved to Newark.

It has been generally understood that the delay in appointing a successor to Mr. Wilder was due to a difference of opinion regarding the move, among the higher officials. Some were for abolishing the office altogether, and others favored different candidates.

Mr. Copper's headquarters has long been in Newark, and as this city is a divisional point with the B. & O., it is the logical point for its divisional man to be located.

Mr. Copper's many Newark friends will be ready to offer congratulations at the first opportunity.

REVOLUTIONISTS

Who Tried to Kill Governor General Resorted To Ruse To Attack the Man.

Warsaw, Aug. 20.—Revolutionists who tried to assassinate the governor general adopted a strategy to induce him to leave the palace. A few days ago a revolutionist disguised as an officer appeared at the German consulate, quarreled with the vice consul and boxed his ears. Owing to this incident the governor general was compelled to visit the vice consul and offer an apology. Meanwhile the revolutionists rented a flat near the vice consul's residence and when the governor general's carriage appeared they threw bombs at it. The police, having been informed that a light-haired girl threw the bombs, arrested all the light-haired girls in the neighborhood. Nevertheless the miscreant was not captured.

MOTORMAN

Attacked By Italians Who Dragged Him From Car at Chicago and Beat Him.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—John Grady, a motorman, was probably fatally injured by a crowd of Italians, who dragged him from the car and kicked and beat him. Grady attempted to run his car through the line of parade of an Italian society, when 500 men surrounded the car and threw the motorman into the street. A riot call was sent to police headquarters and a number of officers hurried to the scene. At sight of the police the Italians dispersed in different directions, hurling stones and other missiles at the officers. Many of the rioters carried revolvers and discharged them frequently during the trouble. The police fired revolvers into the air to intimidate the Italians. After two of the leaders were arrested the remainder of the rioters scattered. No one was injured by the revolver shots.

PROTEST FILED AGAINST GREECE

Philippopolis, Bulgaria, Aug. 20.—A meeting of 20,000 inhabitants of this city and surrounding districts, attended also by 1,900 delegates from Macedonian associations in all parts of Bulgaria, adopted resolutions protesting against Greek outrages and urging the government and the nation to use all means to secure a strict enforcement of the treaty of Berlin; to break off diplomatic negotiations with Greece; to meet the Greek outrages with all the reprisals permitted by international law, and to affirm the inadequacy of the Muerzsteg program which provides for the maintenance of status quo in the Balkans. The meeting further recorded an expression of regret for acts of intolerance by certain Bulgarians on Greek provocation. The meeting was quite orderly and at its conclusion those present formed into an imposing procession and left copies of the resolutions at the Russian, French and British consulates.

It Was an Excursion Train Carrying About Four Hundred and Fifty People.

A B. & O. wreck occurred Monday morning about 4:30 o'clock when an excursion train carrying about 450 passengers was derailed near the Cambridge tunnel. None of the passengers was hurt.

The train, which was running as the second section of 106, a Cincinnati and Wheeling excursion, was in charge of Conductor J. S. Woodworth, and was being drawn by engine 1317 in charge of Engineer Michael Healey. Not far from the Cambridge tunnel the train was making very good time when it ran into an open switch. The engine was derailed and thrown on one side. Three cars were also derailed but none of the passengers suffered any injuries. A wreck crew was sent for at once and the cars replaced on the track.

NEWARK MAN IS WANTED BY POLICE

STABBING AFFRAY IN COLUMBUS RESULT OF QUARREL ON UNIONISM.

Eugene Fox, Brass Molder, Cut Five Times and His Condition Is Serious.

The Newark police are looking for a man who is said to be a German tailor or molder on the charge of seriously injuring Eugene Fox in Columbus Sunday night. A message to Chief Sheridan from Columbus gave a description of the man and asked that he be taken into custody. His name was not known to the police. The following from Columbus tells of the assault:

Columbus, O., Aug. 20.—Staggering to a patrol wagon because of weakness due to excessive flow of blood from four severe knife wounds in his head and arms, sustained in a fight, Eugene Fox, a brass molder, was taken from his boarding house at 40 East Mound street, to the St. Francis hospital at 3 o'clock Sunday night. His condition is serious. His physicians are as yet unable to determine the outcome.

His assailant is said to be a tailor, whose home is in Newark. The cutting took place in front of Edward Kull's saloon, at 79 East Mound street, at 7:30 o'clock as the result of an argument on unionism.

But for the timely intervention of his friend, John Spellacy, who jerked his assailant from off his back, Fox would probably have been fatally hurt, as the one who wielded the weapon acted like a madman.

Fox sustained a cut in his left arm at the shoulder which extended to the bone and was three inches long. He was cut across the top of his left eye and on the top of his head. A thrust of the knife made the most serious wound in the right arm just below the elbow.

He was assisted to his room and Dr. Edward Herbst temporarily dressed his injuries before the arrival of the police to transfer him to the hospital. Fox, who displayed remarkable nerve, refused to discuss the affair.

According to information in the hands of the police, Fox, with friends, entered Kull's saloon. They stood drinking when a party of men, including two non-union tailors of Newark, one of whom was his assailant, came into the place. It was not long before Fox began upbraiding the Newark workmen because they did not belong to a union.

They replied that their sympathies were with the unions, but their talk did not satisfy Fox, who persisted in quarreling. The crowd was put out of the saloon.

Then they moved to Third and Mound streets, where they attracted a large crowd as they took turns in rolling each other over in the mud and using their fists, too.

They were separated. Fox started for his boarding house, while his assailant went after a knife. In less than a half hour they met again in front of Kull's saloon, where the cutting occurred.

For ten cents you can enjoy all the pleasures of the lawn life to be held by the members of Licking Company. 121. U. R. K. P. on the Pythian lot, 192 East Main street, Tuesday night. 18-31

OLDHAM BACK TO REFORMATORY

JOHN LECRAFT ARRESTED ON COMPLAINT OF WIFE IS SENT TO JAIL.

Haggerty Again Before the Mayor—Three Small Boys Are Arrested For Stealing.

Back to the Mansfield Reformatory was the fate of Fred Oldham, a young man living in East Newark, who was found on the street drunk Saturday by Chief Sheridan. The chief took him to the police station and locked him up. The man had recently been paroled. He was sent from Newark, a year ago for robbing an East Newark saloon. Officer Zergibel took Oldham back to Mansfield Monday morning.

John Lecraft was brought before Mayor McCleery Monday charged with being drunk and disorderly. The man's wife made the complaint and stated that he drove her from the house Saturday and refused to allow her to return to get her clothing. Officer Zergibel accompanied the woman to her home to get her clothing.

SOMETHING FOR ALMOST NOTHING

Our canvassers will call on every family in the city and demonstrate the Lyra Talking Machines. No matter whether you want one or not let him show it to you. After you see it you will wonder how it can be sold on the terms we offer.

Charles Haggerty almost made a record for himself by keeping out of jail for two months. He faced Mayor McCleery on a drunk charge Monday and told his honor that he was sorry to say but he had drunk a little too much. He was fined $5 and costs and sentenced to the stone pile. As he was led out, he thanked the court for leniency, saying that he didn't like the county jail.

Three small boys, aged about 12 years, were arrested by Officer Carroll, Saturday afternoon, on a charge of taking packages out of buggies hitched on the street. The boys had been making the client of the buggies, taking anything they could find. Mrs. Mary Morgan and H. A. Muslemann, both residing in the country, were two, who lost articles by the boys' work. The package contained shirts, collars, underclothing and hats. A plea of guilty was entered by the three lads and they were required to give bond in the sum of $25 each.

FINAL CALL FOR LEWIS MORRISON PROMINENT ACTOR

IN HIS TIME MR. MORRISON PLAYED MANY PARTS BEHIND THE FOOTLIGHTS.

A BIG SUCCESS AS MEPHISTO

Well-Known Actor, Born in Jamaica. Served in War and Became Captain.

New York, Aug. 20.—At the age of 61 years, the curtain was rung down on the final exit of Lewis Morrison, an actor whose impersonation of Mephisto "Faust" will long survive as a testimony to his histrionic ability. His death occurred at a hospital in Yonkers, following an operation for a disease of the stomach. Morrison was born in Kingston, Jamaica in 1845. He came to this country at an early age and enlisted on the Union side in the civil war. He rose to the rank of lieutenant, and on his honorable discharge at the close of the war he received the rank of captain for distinguished service. He then entered the theatrical profession as an actor in the old Varieties theater, New Orleans, making his first appearance with Lawrence Barrett in 1865. He was afterward associated with Edwin Booth, Edwin Forrest, Thomas Salvini, Melodee Neilson, Charlotte Cushman, Janauschek, Rose Coghlan and Agnes Booth. He was also associated for one year as lead actor with the old Walnut street stock company in Philadelphia. He was next with the old California theater stock company in San Francisco, and then took up "Faust" with himself as Mephisto and for fully 20 years starred this country and Canada.

The Order of Railway Conductors will hold their annual picnic at Buckeye Lake, Aug. 22. Special cars will leave every day from 8:15 to 2:15. Adults 25c and trip children 15c.

AMUSEMENTS

IKEY AND ABIE.

Ginger: that's what the public demand in all musical shows, and to assert that Manager Saiter has injected plenty of it in his newest musical comique, "Ikey and Abie," is putting it mildly, indeed. Songs, dances, pleasing specialties, and a good sized "beauty chorus" are many of the adjuncts that go far to make this the big merry jingle of the present season. Messrs. Will H. Cohan and Lew Welch are the two bright stars who will be seen in the title roles of "Ikey and Abie," and as their reputations have been fully established as premier comedians, no hesitancy need be evinced by the local theatre-goers in accepting this show as announced. "The biggest and best musical show on the road this season." Its first performance here is announced for Thursday, August 23, at the Auditorium.

A Doctor's Prescription.

For years Dr. A. L. Jackson used the Jackson Remedies in his private practice as a regular prescription. He had no thought of manufacturing or advertising it as a proprietary medicine until there was a demand for it by his many friends, who clamored for the original prescription.

Two Thousand Patients

D., Optician, North Park Place, Newark, Ohio, writes that he has suffered with indigestion and all attending ills, but after taking Dr. Jackson's Digestive and Liver Powders, I was relieved after the first dose and after the first box felt like a new man. BEN WARD SET FREE FROM PEN

LICKING COUNTY PRISONER GOES BACK WHEN TOLD HE IS WANTED.

Question About His Previous Confinement Must Report To Prison
Each Week.

On October 20, 1894, Judge Waldo Taylor, then mayor of the City of Newark, issued a warrant for the arrest of Ben Ward, on the charge of making a criminal assault on Catherine Swigart. Ward was bound over to the grand jury in the sum of $2,000, and a default of bond was demanded, and the county jail. At the June term of the common pleas court in 1895, he was tried, convicted and sentenced to the penitentiary for a term of twenty years. He was defended by the late C. D. Barrows, who filed several pleadings to the indictment, all of which were overruled or quashed. The court records do not show that he was ever sent to the penitentiary from this county on a previous occasion.

Columbus, O., Aug. 20.—"The landlady told me, when I got home for supper tonight, that day wanted me at the pen, so, I didn't wait for mah supper an' come right ova." With these words Benjamin Ward, paroled prisoner, who was serving twenty years in the penitentiary for assault, from Licking county, over whose parole so much agitation has been caused in view of the fact that Ward was said to have served a previous term in the penitentiary, making his parole illegal, surrendered himself, Saturday afternoon about 5 o'clock. One half hour later he left the prison again, still a paroled prisoner, but ordered to report to Warden Gould every week until the fact that he did not serve a previous term has been absolutely proved.

The action of Ward was predicted in the afternoon by Warden Gould himself in speaking of the affair to Deputy Warden Wood. "I believe that Ward would come over here and surrender himself, if he knew that he was wanted," said the warden, and it was not two hours afterward until the notorious colored convict walked into the deputies' office, where the warden was seated. He had presented himself to Clerk Shook, to that official's great surprise, and he sent him into the prison to see Warden Gould.

With ejaculations of surprise and wonder the warden and deputy warden rose to their feet at the entrance of Ward. The convict then explained his presence as he did to Clerk Shook, saying that he had just heard that he was wanted and came over before eating supper. "Ah been workin' out at Andington in a cap'nent," he said, "and boardin' in town. What do you want with me?"

After asking him a few personal questions Warden Gould who saw that Ward did not know anything of the circumstances, thought he would settle the question as far as Ward went right there.

"Ward," he said, "how many times were you here before?"

"When was that?" asked the warden. "That was in 1885, sir," replied Ward. "You were pardoned out on that, wasn't you?" "Yes, sir," "When?" "In 1888, sir, by Governor Foraker," "Were you ever here before that," continued the warden, pressing him. "No, sir," said Ward in surprise. "You are sure?" "Yes, sir."

Then the Warden explained to Ward, when he saw that he seemed to be truthful in the matter just why he had been wanted by the prison authorities. The warden explained that the books showed that he had served a term previous to the one in 1885 for which he was pardoned. This, however, was not learned until Ward had been released. If he was a second-term he could not be paroled and should have known it. Ward, however, insisted that he had served only the one term prior to the one for which he is now serving as a paroled prisoner and said that he knew this did not count against him because he had been pardoned.

The warden then told Ward that he could not hold him prisoner because he had no proof of the alleged previous term served by him. "You are free to go," he said, "but you must report to me each week hereafter until we find out whether you are telling the truth or not. In the meantime you will not be losing time while you are outside, and if we bring you back your sentence will continue just the same as if you had been inside." The warden was very much impressed with the honesty of the old colored man who has already served over 11 years of his sentence and has only about a year more to serve anyway on his short time sentence for good behavior. As to whether the convict knew what was up or not, the warden was not sure.

After being impressed with the fact that it would cost him seven years of imprisonment if he violated the parole, because he would then be compelled to serve out the full twenty-year sentence, Ward was told that he could go and walk out of the prison a free man again. A load had been lifted from his mind. And the best part of it was that the penitentiary officials had always been so impressed with the honesty of the notorious colored man that they had expected he would do the very thing he did. Some feeling had been evinced in the prison among the convicts, who felt that there were better prisoners to release than the second-termers. Every prisoner in the penitentiary had heard of his return, Saturday night.

PATRICK FORD TAKES A BATH

HUNDREDS OF PEOPLE LISTEN TO SPEECH FROM MIDDLE OF CANAL.

Break Away From Officers Ford,
Though Handcuffed, Plunged Into Water.

Standing in the middle of the canal, between First and Second streets, drunk and handcuffed, with the water up to his waist, Pat Ford expressed his opinion of the police to a crowd of 400 people who witnessed him take his noonday bath.

Ford, who was arrested sometime ago, under the name of Pat Ryan, on a charge of drunkenness, was given $5 and costs and a sentence in jail. He had only been released from that institution Monday morning, and proceeded to "fill 'em up again." With a good share of liquor and bad language Ford started to climb on a Panhandle train. Detective Smith, noting the condition of the man, placed him under arrest, and when he resisted and showed fight, handcuffed him. Detective Smith's prisoner proceeded, under protest, until he reached a point along the canal bank near the Scheider shops, where he gave a lunge, releasing the officer's hold easier than he had thought. With a splash and blubber Ford landed in the water, then, wading to the middle of the canal, proceeded to deliver an address. Two policemen and Officer Smith stood on the bank with the crowd of people, perfectly helpless and at the same time willing that Ford should take a good bath while he was at it. After considerable argument, he came slowly to the bank, and gave himself up to Officer Carroll, marching to the station murmuring something about prison reform and cleanliness.

The action of Ford was predicted in the afternoon by Warden Gould himself in speaking of the affair to Deputy Warden Wood. "I believe that Ward would come over here and surrender himself, if he knew that he was wanted," said the warden, and it was not two hours afterward until the notorious colored convict walked into the deputies' office, where the warden was seated. He had presented himself to Clerk Shook, to that official's great surprise, and he sent him into the prison to see Warden Gould.

TAYLOR VS TAYLOR COLUMBUS RACE

VETERAN NEWSPAPER MAN HAS BEEN NOMINATED FOR REPRESENTATIVE.

Col. Taylor Is Well Known In This City—Man of People and For Their Interests.

Col. William A. Taylor, who the Democrats of the Twelfth Congressional district nominated for congress Saturday at Columbus, is a journalist, lawyer and veteran of the Civil war. Colonel Taylor is known almost as well in Newark as he is in Columbus. For years he attended the annual May meetings of the Licking County Democracy.

HON. WM. A. TAYLOR.

Nominated for Congress by Columbus Democrats.

Just 14 years ago Colonel Taylor was first a candidate for public office, at that time having had put upon him the candidacy for the office of secretary of state. His opponent in that race was Samuel L. Taylor of Urbana, to whom he lost by something like a thousand votes.

In his coming campaign for congress he will again have an opponent of the same name, the present congressman from this district, Edward L. Taylor, Jr., but, as in the first case, of no family connection. The year following his first appearance in the political field Colonel Taylor again ran for office, that of lieutenant governor, to the candidacy for which, after having lost out on the gubernatorial nomination by two votes, he was nominated by acclamation. In this race his opponent, by whom he was defeated, was General Andrew Harris, now governor of Ohio and his first campaign speech was made at Eaton, the home of Governor Harris.

Colonel Taylor had not sought office, but had accepted the nominations only upon the urging of his friends, and following his defeat for the lieutenant governorship he again gave himself up to his duties as public writer for papers, and magazine writer, and save for serving on committees, was connected with politics only as the observer and the writer. For the third time now, however, 14 years after he last actively engaged in politics, he has again been prevailed upon by his friends, and his party, to run for office, and for this reason accepted the nomination Saturday to become a candidate for congressman upon the Democratic ticket for the Twelfth district.

Colonel Taylor has lived in Columbus for 24 years, and all that time in the house where he now resides, at 617 Franklin avenue. He is a native of Perry county, where he was born on a farm in 1837. He was the second youngest of a family of twelve children. The first 17 years of his life he spent at home, being occupied the last two years of this period in teaching the country school, in which, up to the time that he was 15, he had been schooled himself. Then he entered the newspaper field, starting in as joint owner of the New Lexington Herald, where he began the career that later put him in the front rank of journalists. He also had brothers in newspaper work, one of whom, Colonel James Taylor, was for years connected with the Ohio State Journal.

During this period of work on the Herald, Colonel Taylor studied law, was admitted to the bar, and shortly afterwards, when but little more than past his majority, was appointed prosecuting attorney of the county to fill an unexpired term. The law, particularly from the view point of the office of the prosecutor, however, did not appeal to him, and he gave it up with the expiration of the term, and devoted himself to his newspaper work, his connection with which, by the way, he had all the time retained. It was just about this time that Artemus Ward in his travels up and down the country stopped in New Lexington, and wrote and set up in type for the Herald some of his humorous productions. Colonel Taylor, of course, saw much of him, and his own more or less natural tendency toward the style of the humorist was thus developed. The result of this was that shortly afterwards, when Artemus Ward had begun to make the Cleveland Plain Dealer a much-quoted paper, Colonel Taylor was offered a position as humorist on the Cincinnati Enquirer. He accepted the place, but remained the "funny man" for only one week, at the end of that time being made one of the editorial writers.

Colonel Taylor, then the young editorial writer, enlisted in the army, the Civil war having broken out, and for three years and more served with the army of the Potomac. When the war was over he returned to his newspaper work once more, holding positions, as time went on, on the Pittsburg Post, the New York Sun, of which he was assistant manager for awhile, and others of the big dailies. Finally he came back to the Enquirer, and took charge of the politics of the paper. In this way he came into close touch with all the political movements in Ohio and bordering states. He was never a seeker after office, however, the only position that he ever held being that of clerk of the senate, in 1890 and 1891, when Governor Harris was a member of the house.

In all the connection that he has had with political activities, Colonel Taylor has stood against bossism, and been on the side favoring protection of the people's rights. He is a firm believer that the purpose of his party is to aid the public to save it from the officeholder who seeks graft, and abuses the power that the people have put in his hands. In the speech that he made before the convention Saturday, he showed what might be expected of him if he should be elected to office, namely, that he would serve the public that elected him, oppose bossism and fight graft.

The quiet that Colonel Taylor is about to leave, for the wearing campaign, is the quiet of the student. He still keeps up his writing, and just now is engaged on a magazine article, far apart from politics, which is intended as an answer to an article lately published by Professor Elliott of Butte, Mont., on the coming re-glacialization of the North Pole. By the way Colonel Taylor does not believe that there is any need to fear that Ohio, at least before the next several million years, will again be over-run by glaciers.

Though preferring to the worries and hardships of a campaign, Colonel Taylor comes from a big Revolutionary stock that made a big word of duty to country, and this same feeling of duty made him consent to become the candidate of his party for congressman from his district. Throughout the whole district he has the backing of his party, and besides this has the support of a large number of friends. He is a man of the people and for their interests.

BELL-HAYES

Big Crowd Attended Annual Reunion of These Families Saturday Near Utica.

The annual reunion of the Bell-Hayes families was held at the Bell church, just over the Licking county line in Knox county, four miles north-east of Utica, on Saturday. There was a large attendance of the relatives or connections of the two families, some four or five hundred people being present, some being present from Iowa, some from Indiana and others as far distant as New Mexico, including, of course, a large number from Knox and Licking counties. Mr. Edward M. Bell presided very gracefully over the meeting and introduced the different features on the program. A sumptuous dinner was served at the room hour on two large tables under the shade trees in the grove adjoining the church. The exercises consisted of music, speaking and singing. The principal speakers of the occasion were Judge E. M. P. Brister, O. C. Larason, Judge C. W. Seward and others.

Michael F. Dwyer, the noted horse-man, died in New York.

HEAVY RAINS ON SUNDAY EVENING

TRACKS WEST OF NEWARK.

Pile Driving Crew Called Out Early
Monday Morning To Save
Certain Bridges.

The heavy rains of Sunday afternoon and evening caused some trouble on the C. and O. division of the B. and O. railway, interfering with traffic to quite an extent. Water covered the tracks between Pataskala and Outville and between Union Station and Central City, west of Newark.

A bridge was damaged by the water at Camp Creek and it was necessary to send for a pile driver at 3 o'clock Monday morning to drive piling to make the bridges safe. Traffic could not be resumed until 7:30 Monday morning.

BIRTHDAY PARTY NEAR KIRKERSVILLE

Kirkersville, O., Aug. 20.—On last Wednesday evening a party of forty or fifty young and old came together and started on a southern trip down the Baltimore Pike. L. H. White headed the procession with his two-horse wagon, filled with men, women, children and baskets filled with everything of the season—fried chicken, young geese, cakes, &c., and also a can of ice cream. No use for any remarks, for Dr. Comstock made it and that settled it. There must have been twenty to twenty-five rigs in line for when the head-of-the-procession landed at its destination—the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Byron Brothers—there were still rigs turning south off the Old National road coming from the east and west. Mrs. Brothers was informed that the occasion was her twenty-sixth anniversary. A good time was had by all, and it was not until the wee sma' hours of morning that they all started for their homes. Many wishes were extended for the return of a similar occasion for her 27th anniversary.

Those present were: L. H. White, Mr. and Mrs. John Lemley, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Hartman, Mrs. Hartman, Mrs. Stevenson, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Simms, Mr. and Mrs. John Comstock, Mr. and Mrs. E. Bucy and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Clark, Mr. and Mrs. John Spurgeon, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Hawkins and children, Mr. and Mrs. John Keelhorn and children, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Roshon, Mr. and Mrs. Roup and family, Mr. and Mrs. G. HISTORIC REGIMENT TO HOLD REUNION

Veterans of Atlanta Campaign Will Meet at Hebron In September.

Richwood, O., Aug. 20.—The 28th annual reunion of the Thirty-first Ohio Veteran Volunteer infantry will be held in Hebron, Licking county, on Thursday, September 27. C. L. Williams of Columbus is president of the association and S. A. McNeil of Richwood is secretary.

The Thirty-first was organized at Camp Chase in August and September of 1861, and General M. B. Walker was its first colonel. General Charles G. Hood of the regular army, who commanded a brigade in the Philippines until recently, served through the war and Thomas, and re-enlisted as a vet-officer.

The regiment served in the army of the Cumberland under Buell, Rosecrans and Thomas, and re-enlisted as a veteran regiment in the Atlanta campaign. When it was mustered out of service every commissioned officer from colonel down had risen from the ranks, showing the hard fighting it had gone through and serious losses sustained.

BRING REUNION TO NEWARK NEXT YEAR

The Dennison-Litchville Chronicle of August 18 printed the following notice:

The first reunion of the Seventh regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry of which Company M is a member, will be held in Chillicothe August 30 and 31. Notices have been sent out by Adjutant Timm Gilmore and it is hoped to have most of the members who served with the regiment during the Spanish-American war on hand for the initial reunion. It is earnestly hoped that Company M will send a good delegation and will work hard to bring the next reunion to the twin cities. It is now eight years since the boys were the blue, and many of them have not met since the regiment was mustered out at Columbus in November, 1898. This reunion will be a grand occasion to renew the old acquaintances begun during camp life and it is hoped that most of the members of the regiment in this vicinity will attend.

What's the matter with Licking county, which furnished more men for that regiment than any other county in the confines of that organization, that is bounded on the north by Holmes county, on the south by the Ohio river, on the east by the Tuscarawas county and on the west by Fayette county. The Licking county boys should look to their laurels. Don't let the chance slip, boys, but when you go down to "rally around the Hub." Come to Newark and we will show you how generously we can and will entertain you in Newark in 1907.
